There are no statutory requirements for consultation on a Local Plan review. The decision to commence a review has however been publicised through the mediums outlined in Section 15 and the decision to commence the review can be viewed via the council's website (see background papers section 14).

Section 15 of the Planning and Compulsory Act 2004 (as amended) requires the production of a Local Development Scheme (a timetable setting out the different stages of plan preparation including key stages of consultation etc). Following a Full Council decision to start Local Plan 2, there would need to be a Cabinet decision to approve an updated Local Development Scheme. The council is also required to produce a Statement of Community Involvement which sets out who, when and how consultation on the Local Plan will take place.
